MISSOULA--

The Montana Little Symphony, under the direction of University of Montana music Prof. Eugene Andrie, will present a free public recital with Mary Jean Simpson, flutist and UM music instructor, at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 12, in the UM Music Recital Hall.

Tuesday's program, which is sponsored by the UM School of Fine Arts and Department of Music, will include presentation of the work entitled "Epic for Flute and Orchestra" by Dr. Donald O. Johnston, UM music professor. The work is the second in the University's "Livart Series," which focuses attention on performance of contemporary compositions during the free public concerts. Simpson will be flutist during presentation of the Johnston composition.

Other works on Tuesday's program include "Overture to The Marriage of Figaro" by W. A. Mozart; "Pelleas and Melisande Suite" by Gabriel Faure, and "Symphony No. 4 in B flat major, opus 60" by L. van Beethoven.

Most of the Montana Little Symphony's 38 members are UM students. UM music faculty who are members of the group include Dr. Gerald Doty, professor, violin; Julian Woodruff, graduate assistant in music, viola (principal), assistant to the conductor; Bernard McWilliams, assistant professor, viola, and Priscilla Eitel, instructor, harp.

UM students who are members of the little symphony are: Violins--Katie Loeffler (concertmaster), Susan Davies, Susan Baer, Leslie Blair, Forest Reinhardt, Samuel Taylor (principal) and Linda Madsen; viola--Roxanne King; cellos--Marina Graham (principal), Allison Negus and Susan Lofgren; double-bass--Bruce Purdy (principal) and Hampton Childress; piano--Jenanne Solberg.
